Viral marketing refers to stealth marketing techniques that produce increase in brand awareness exponentially through a self replicating process, very similar to the spread of a computer virus. Through the Internet, it reaches a large number of people fast. Viral marketing has the ability to execute a low cost marketing campaign, and obtain response from a large number of interested people. A real marketers dream high and rapid response for not much!br /

br /

As a strategy, Viral marketing encourages people to pass on marketing messages to others, and create a potential for growth, exponentially. For many people, the term viral marketing is quite offensive, reminiscent of the virus that replicates over and over again, with no end. Viral marketing is the word-of-mouth equivalent of the off-Internet marketing strategy. Viral marketing, however offensive it may seem to some, has come to stay. br /

br /

The biginning of Viral marketing is attributed to Hotmail one of the first free email services. At the bottom of each of the free email sent out was a small message Get your private, free email at hotmail.com. All the recipients of the senders emails, their friends and associates, would see the message, sign up for the free email service, and help send the message further to their own list of friends and acquaintances. This carefully designed viral marketing strategy sent a small message rapidly across, all over the Internet. Now its your turn!br /

br /
The Elements Of Viral Marketingbr /

If you are thinking of incorporating Viral marketing in your overall strategy, this is what you can do. Some may work and some may not, and not all will work as easy as the Hotmail strategy did. A look at some of the elements:br /

br /
Effortless Transfer: To make the virus of viral marketing spread, you need a viable medium. A medium that will help transfer and spread your message with ease and comfort, something like an e-mail, website, graphic, software download, etc. Internet offers the best, instant, and a very inexpensive way to transfer and replicate your message. Make your Viral marketing message short, compact, and compelling so as to be able to transmit without degradation. br /

br /
- Building Scalability: For your viral marketing strategy to work, it must have the ability to spread rapidly from small to large. As in the case of Hotmail, it was limited by the spread of the message only over its own servers. You need to plan ahead in your strategy, and build scalability in your model. br /

br /
]Utilizing Existing Communication Networks: Humans are social animals, and every person has a network of 10 close friends, family, and associates, with whom he communicates. Some people, depending, have scores and hundreds with whom they may be communicating on a regular basis. Today, people have developed a network of relationships through the net. They have a network of emails and favorite website URLs. Your viral marketing strategy must include ways to place your message into these existing networks to multiply and spread fast. br /

br /
Your viral marketing strategy must include the use of others resources, such as placing your text or graphic links on others websites. This way, other peoples websites are relaying your messages, which can be seen by hundreds of visitors visiting those websites. br /
