Affiliate Marketing - Pay Per Click Keeps Your Bank Balance Clicking Along

Pay per click is probably the first form of affiliate marketing that came along with the Internet and although it is no longer the most popular type of advertising, it is still in use today. The premise behind the pay per click program is very simple, you place a banner or ad on your website and every time someone clicks on it you get paid; that is all there is to it. At one point in time there were hundreds of pay per click programs out there, now the numbers have dwindled, but here are some of the ones that are still available starting with the biggest one we all know.br /

Google AdSense is probably the biggest and most well known pay per click affiliate program on the Internet. Google is somewhat discriminate when it comes to offering you an affiliate for your website; they check your site to make sure that the content is original and relatively fresh. In the typical website ad from Google you will see several ads in a small banner; each one is a link to a separate advertising page. These ads are targeted towards the content on your site to help bring in more visitors, making you more money. Payment rate varies depending on ad content and you will receive a check each time your account reaches $100 in a given month, if it does not reach the $100 threshold your account rolls over to the next month.br /

Casino Rewards offers a pay per click plus program to its affiliates which is a little different than most. You will get paid $.10 per click for every visitor to the casino web site, and then if they join you will be paid $50. If you refer another web site owner to Casino Rewards you will earn even more money provided they decide to join the affiliate program. They pay once a month, on or before the 7th so you are never left waiting for your money.br /

The Baxter tea company offers a pay per click program that includes a bonus if the visitor actually makes a purchase. The company offers fine teas, accessories, gift baskets for every taste as well as coffees and herbals. For the affiliate, the program offers $.20 per click and 15% of any completed sale, minimum payout is $50 and is paid monthly.br /

These are just a sampling of the pay per click affiliate programs available, further research on the Internet will reveal several more. One thing to remember is that many of them have specific standards for the web sites that they will place an ad on and most of them have a minimum payout plan, so if you are looking for fast revenue this may not be the best choice.br /
