The registry could be under a lot of slowdowns because of all of the programs installed. The registry is the core of your operating system, it's sort of like a brain and this controls how it runs and how efficiently it runs, especially its speed. Things like viruses and adware can get built up in the registry and cause the registry to be filled with unnecessary and redundant files and can even damage it to the point where your entire system becomes inoperable. Downloading a registry cleaning software program can eradicate this particular problem and put your computer back into its original state. This is probably the easiest and quickest way to make a computer faster.br /
