Wealthy Affiliate A Scam? - View The Full Review

With unemployment rates soaring and bills increasing just as fast, many Americans are looking for a way to fill the gaps in their budget. Sites such as www.wealthyaffiliate.com seem to offer an answer to the eternal problem of more month than money with their promise of easy money on the internet. But how effective is this site in fulfilling their promises? Are they producing leagues of savvy internet millionaires? Or are the would-be wealthy affiliates merely falling prey to a Wealthy Affiliate scam?

Wealthy Affiliate is not promising a business opportunity so much as a bundle of information on how other people have found success as marketing affiliates. An 'affiliate' makes money referring others to business and websites on the internet. Although these referrals pay as little as a few pennies each, they can add up quickly if a large amount of traffic is involved. Wealthy Affiliate promises to help you get that traffic by creating a website and then identifying and using specially selected keywords. When you look over the claims at the Wealthy Affiliate site, 'scam' is one of the first words that comes to mind.

This program does not come for free. Your investment comes at a monthly cost to become part of their internet marketing community. Additional costs may arise later; after all, nothing is free. However, before calling this a Wealthy Affiliate scam, it's important to consider that almost all businesses involve start up costs. If you want to take your chances as an internet affiliate, paying for industry secrets just may be the kick start you need.

Wealthy Affiliate promises a package deal with not just a set of industry secrets, but a website with easy builder software, a content generator to fill that website with carefully selected keywords, and a supportive community to walk you through your path to producing more than a brain surgeon. These too-good-to-be-true claims definitely make this opportunity in sheep's clothing sound like a wealthy affiliate scam.

However, there are signs that success is possible with the Wealthy Affiliate system. First, the site is clear that this is not a "get rich quick" opportunity. They acknowledge that time and effort will be involved. Second, they seem to have an impressive stable of satisfied customers. Whether these are real people and whether they are a small percentage of Wealthy Affiliate's customer base remains unknown.

Is this a Wealthy Affiliate opportunity or a Wealthy Affiliate scam? You be the judge. In this case, as with almost every other offer, the buyer has to beware and be wary. When judging this or any other web site promising a money making opportunity, you must consider whether it sounds too good to be true, whether you can afford an investment of time and money that may never pay off, and whether you have the time and savvy to make your business a success in this competitive global environment. While naming this a wealthy affiliate scam may be a little harsh, calling it easy money would be even more inaccurate.
